Miss Hood Becomes Bride of Lieut. Waterman.

CEREMONY AT BRIDE'S HOME

Miss Rose Osgood and Lieut. Charles Edgar Brillhart, U. S. N., are married in Presidential Suite of the New Willard by Chaplain George L. Bayard—Social Notes of Interest.

Miss Ruth Hood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper Hood, and Lieut. John J. Waterman, U. S. A., were married at the home of the bride's parents, in Twenty-second street, at 8 o'clock last evening, by Rev. O. S. Dean, D. D., of Passaic, N. J., uncle of the bride. The house was tastefully decorated in the early yellow, mingled with green. The mantels were flanked with faraway ferns and golden glow, and the prisms in the bay window of the drawing room was festooned with the delicate fern. The bride was attended by Miss Ruth Heermans, of Olympia, Wash., who acted as maid of honor, and Mr. Leonard Waterman, of Grand Rapids, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore an exquisite gown of imported white crepe de chine, richly embroidered and with a rare flounce of finest Chantilly lace draped over the bodice and skirt in a graceful fashion. Duchesse point lace was used upon the sleeves and about the neck. A tulle veil held with orange blossoms and a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids completed the unusually beautiful costume. The maid of honor wore a charming gown of yellow chiffon with a flowered border, over yellow satin and carried a shower of maidenhead fern. Mrs. Hood, mother of the bride, wore black chiffon cloth over black silk.

Only immediate relatives and a few intimate friends were present. A bridal supper followed the ceremony. The table was decorated in yellow. The bride cut the cake with the bridegroom's sword, and it was a merry little party which saw them depart for an extended trip through the far West. The bride wore for traveling a gray cloth suit and a black toque. After the wedding trip they will be at home at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Miss Rose Osgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whitman Osgood, of this city, was married yesterday morning to Lieut. Charles Edgar Brillhart, U. S. N. The ceremony was performed at 11:30 in the Presidential suite of the New Willard Hotel by Chaplain George L. Bayard, U. S. N., in the presence of a very small company of the two families.

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles T. Hutchins, son and daughter-in-law of Rear Admiral Hutchins, were best man and matron of honor. The ceremony was performed according to the Episcopal rites. The bride wore white satin and lace, with a tulle veil and orange blossoms. After the luncheon the bride and bridegroom left for Philadelphia, the first lap of a long motor trip through the Berkshires and the White Mountains of New Hampshire. The bride wore a motor costume of shepherd plaid, with a gray auto bonnet. On their return they will have an apartment at the Calvo. The bride is known as one of the most skillful horsewomen and motorists. She is well known as a cross-country rider.

Miss Anna Clara Harris Whitfield, of Milledgeville, Ga., was married yesterday to Mr. Welles Merriam, of this city. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Ascension by Rev. Nelson Falls, of Georgetown. The bride wore her traveling suit, and the couple left immediately afterward for a wedding trip North. On their return they will spend some time with the bridegroom's brother, Dr. Merriam, in Kensington, Md. The bride is a sister of Lieut. Robert Whitfield, U. S. A., and came to Washington to study art, in which she has made splendid progress.

The marriage of Miss Alice Dean Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hill, to Dr. Harry Wells Woodward took place in the home of the bride's parents in Sixteenth street at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. C. Powers. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue Chantilly silk, with hat to match, and carried Bride roses. A reception followed, and after the wedding luncheon the bride and bridegroom left for the North. Their future home will be in Massachusetts avenue.

Mrs. Ralston, wife of Lieut. Ralston, has been the recent guest of the Tyters.

MORNING CHIT-CHAT.

A Few Leaves from the Diary of a Stomach.

10:00 a. m. Oh, dear; another hot day. Wonder if I'll be abused as I was yesterday. If I am, I'm going to strike. Just disposed of a half-chicken breakfast. We ran for the train, which meant that I was so jiggled about and so tired that it took me twice as long to do my work. Hope she gives me an hour or two of complete rest before anything more comes my way.

10:30 a. m. Two glasses of ice water have just arrived. It will take all the energy I can pump up in the next hour to warm me up to normal again.

10:50 a. m. A half-chicken breakfast didn't satisfy her, and she has bought some peanuts and started eating them.

12:00 p. m. Peanuts have dribbled along steadily ever since last entry. Think she has finished them, though.

12:30 p. m. Decided she wasn't very hungry, and, instead of a good solid dinner, sent me down a cold egg-nog, heavy with chocolate. Could have managed it all right if it hadn't been so cold, but that makes it terribly hard to deal with.

1:10 p. m. More ice water!

1:40 p. m. Was mistaken about the peanuts. She found another handful in the bottom of the bag, and now I have them to tend to.

2:05 p. m. More ice water!

2:10 p. m. She has been lifting some heavy books, and, as usual, used my muscles instead of her arms muscles, as she should have done. Tired me more than digesting a six-course dinner.

3:50 p. m. Some one has brought us a box of caramels and she has started on that.

4:30 p. m. Have received something like half a pound of caramels since last entry. She just said: "Oh, dear; I don't feel a bit well. I know the milk in that egg-nog must have been sour."

4:50 p. m. We were invited out to have a soda before going home. Had a lemon phosphate and then ran for the train.

6:30 p. m. We played a set of tennis before dinner, and here I am all tired out and a dinner to handle.

7:30 p. m. Fried potatoes, green corn, veal, and blueberries. What do you know about that!!!

7:45 p. m. We are going down town for a chocolate walnut college ice!!!

8:20 p. m. Got home and found some one had made some lemonade. She drank two glasses. That on top of the college ice settles it. I strike.

8:40 p. m. Returned the blueberries.

8:50 p. m. And the veal.

9:10 p. m. She has sent for the doctor. Says that college ice must have had something the matter with it. Her mother says it is probably the weak stomach she inherited from her father.

9:30 p. m. Doctor says it's just a little upset, due to the hot weather. Good night!!!!

NEXT WEEK'S PLAYBILLS.

New National—"The Storm."

One of the indications of the passing of summer was the opening of the sale of seats this morning for the first attraction of the regular season at the New National Theater. The opening will begin next Monday afternoon with a special Labor Day matinee. The attraction will be Thomas W. Riley's production of "The Storm," a new romantic play by Langdon Mc Cormick. The company and the two car loads of scenery used in the setting of the story arrived in town last evening, and the finishing of the rehearsals of both players and scenery and light effects will take place here. A general idea of the story of the play has already been published in The Washington Herald. The motive is the most powerful one known—love—and it is handled in an analytical manner, but with what degree of success may not be known until after the play shall have been seen. The players presenting the play have been eminently successful in other plays, and much will depend upon the play itself.

Belasco—"Con & Co."

On Monday next at the Belasco Theater Henry W. Savage will offer for the first time in America his latest European importation, which is described as a cheeky comedy, "Con & Co.," by Oliver Herford. The play bearing this unique title was a success at the Neuveautes Theater, Paris. Its theme is strikingly new, being based upon the idea of two men who conspired together to make money without the formality of having to work for it. One of them, Con, is a genius at devising schemes to produce coin. The situation never offers itself where he cannot turn a trick to get money; for instance, as the play opens a number of distinguished people are assembled on a balcony overlooking the famous Unter den Linden, Berlin, to view a procession in honor of the Sultan of Zanzibar. Cornelius is only an invited guest, but being present for money, as usual, sees in this situation an opportunity and brings with him three strange guests. It transpires that these are men to whom he has sold seats on this balcony to view the parade. They believe that the owner is an impoverished citizen who is thus trying to add to his income, while the owner himself is a rich distinguished man and absolutely ignorant of the character of his guests. Imagine his surprise when the prefect of police comes in and announces to him that he is under arrest for selling seats upon his balcony. He protests, confronts Con, who admits what he has done, and suggests as a remedy that he offer the other 500 marks to overlook the matter. Indignantly, he does so and goes storming off, when Cornelius delighted at the success of the scheme, rushes to the officer and demands half. The officer, it seems, is the Co. of Con & Co. And this is only one of the schemes. The cast is a notable one, and includes Maude Odell, William Burress, Harry Stone, Tom Walsh, Nelly Roland, and Ben Hendricks.

Columbia—"The Marriage of Kitty."

Next week at the Columbia Theater will be a notable one, in that for the first time since her opening week, when she charmed her auditors with the sweetness of her interpretation of Billy Burke's role in "Love Watches," Blanche Hall will be seen in a star part. It will be as Katherine Silverton in "The Marriage of Kitty," a comedy in three acts, adapted from the French of Fred Gosse and P. de Croisset, by Cosmo Gordon Lennox. Despite its origin and the retention of all the humorous situations, sprightliness, gaiety, and interest, it is, withal, clean and devoid of objectionable features. Indeed, it may be described as a thoroughly amusing piece of frivolity that ranges in the course of its action from high comedy almost to burlesque. "The Marriage of Kitty" was produced in New York at the #### Hudson Theater, November 30, 1910, with Marie Tempest in the role Miss Hall will assume with the Columbia Players next week.

Chase-Polite Vaudeville.

The coming together of Labor Day, Nora Bayes, and Jack Norworth, and the first week of autumn, all in the week beginning Monday next, should make the period a series of gala performances at Chase's. Labor Day is always a great event at Chase's, and months ahead the management begins the preparations for engagements for the festive bill. Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth are probably the most popular stars which could be offered now, owing to their recent great hits with "Low Fields," "Joll," "Bachelors," and "Ziegfeld's Follies." And the first week in September finds the regular old guard of Chase patrons homeward bound from mountains and seashore. Hence there is every augury of a most auspicious holiday occasion, and the advance sale adds further confirmation to the anticipation, as there has been a gratifyingly exceptional demand. Miss Bayes and Mr. Norworth are at the head of vaudeville's array of stellar musical comedy favorites, and their salary reaches the Allidain-like proportions of $2,500 a week, almost as much as some entire vaudeville bills cost. Chase's management states that the salary list that week leaves practically no hope of profit, but Miss Bayes and Mr. Norworth could be had, and Chase's felt obliged to present them in spite of the certainty of a week without other profit than a patronage's increased gratitude.

The added attraction will be Ben Johnson, the character comedian, conspicuous last season with the New Theater Company, of New York, and already re-engaged for the remainder of the present season. Mr. Johnson's anecdotic contribution will contain a delightfully rendered imitation of Manfield's method of conducting a rehearsal of his company. Beatrice Ingram and company will play "The Duchess; May Ellmore will rival her sister Kate along similar eccentric lines; the Four De Wols will present a pretty vocal and sartorial feature; the Kremka will sing off a rare foreign visual number, Sidney Baxter, "the wiry Scotchman," and Beatrice Southwick, and "The Girl of Triple X Ranch;" are the remaining attractions.

Academy—Harry Clay Blaney.

Harry Clay Blaney, in his new comedy, "The Boy from Wall Street," is to be next week's attraction at the New Academy, starting with a special matinee on Labor Day. The play is an adaptation by Owen Davis from Sewell Ford's novel "Cherub Divine," which was one of the season's best sellers two years ago. Mr. Blaney has surrounded himself with an excellent company, in whose hands the interpretation of Mr. Ford's characters will lose nothing of their originality. Miss Kitty Wolfe will be seen as Adele, the Countess of Vecchi; W. J. Constantine will be Eppings, the English butler; Thurlow White, Bates; John Horn, the supposed Count Vecchi, and Fred Preston, the Bishop Horton. Mr. John Martin has the role of Adele's father, M. Van Twiller. As The Cherub, Harry Clay Blaney has a role that will entirely divorce him from the popular priced plays and be in keeping with his last season's engagement, that of Flip in Klaw & Erlanger's "Little Nemo." The matinees will be on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

Lyman H. Howe's Pictures.

The scenes and incidents attending the funeral of the late King Edward of England will again be made the feature of the programme of the Lyman H. Howe New York Hippodrome Travel Festival at the Columbia Theater, Sunday evening next, the public demand for a repetition of these remarkable pictures having been insistent since the time of their previous presentation here, some few weeks ago.

These pictures not only present the highest attainment of the moving picture art, but may be regarded as among the most important and convincing historical records extant. Not the least interesting feature of the films are the close facial portraits of the rulers of the world, who assembled to pay personal homage to the memory of the late monarch, accompanied by a cavalcade of princes, field marshals, generals, admirals, and troops from all lands, and our own ex-President, Theodore Roosevelt. In addition to these commanding pictures there will be twenty other big features, including Lake Como, Italy; yachting at Cowes, 1910; marine studies, aeroplane races, wonderful railroad construction, Switzerland in winter, and a study of Indo-China, its people, industries, and pagodas.

Lyceum-Burlesque.

The famous Martell family, five talented cyclists, are with the "Kentucky Belles," the burlesque company which will be the next attraction at the New Lyceum Theater commencing Labor Day. Beginning with "Friends," a comedy, the performance concludes with a burlesque entitled "Slumming in Chinatown." Twenty chorus girls, attired in stunning costumes, lend additional merit to the offering. Other attractions are La Belle Helene, in dances out of the ordinary; Hilda Partridge, in classic poses in bronze; Bill Colton and Jeanne Darrow, in dances; and Charles Ralvey, Brownie Carroll, and last but not least, Joe Opp, the comedian.

Gaiety-Burlesque.

The "Midnight Maidens," which is the offering at the Gaiety next week, has a large array of fun-producing material, clever specialties, gay dances, enticing singers, and a chorus of beautifully gowned girls. Heading the feminine contingent are Gladys Sears and Grace Celest, and the comedy of that popular German comedian, Harry A. Emerson. During the burlesque there is a scene of twenty beautiful bathing girls, with perfect color effects, a scene of intramural beauty. The vaudeville acts comprise many novelties—the Creighton Brothers, Howard and St. Clair, Barto and McCue, Frank and Rick, Charles Ralvey, Brownie Carroll, and last but not least, Joe Opp, the comedian.

Casino—Continuous Vaudeville.

In order to properly celebrate Labor Day, Manager Mayer, of the Casino Theater, has engaged a vaudeville bill of exceptional interest. The acts will include Fred Peters and company, a dramatic organization of six people, who will present a comedy sketch, entitled, "His Lucky Day;" Latina, billed as "The Physical Culture Girl;" Bigelow and Campbell, the laugh makers; May Duryea and company, in a dramatic sketch; Dick Fox, Da Costa brothers, xylophone artists, and the usual three reels of motion picture plays.

Howard—"Smart Set."

Coming to the Howard Theater this week, beginning Monday, will be the noted "Smart Set" company of sixty people. At the head of the company is that foremost of all negro comedians, S. H. Dudley. The name of the comedy is "His Honor, the Barber." It is in three acts and seven scenes, with the locale in the South. Edwin Hanford is the author, and he has turned out a play sure to weather many seasons. Alida Overton Walker, the well-known singing and dancing comedienne, is conspicuous in Mr. Dudley's support. The music is described as being of the jingling, whistly sort, while the fun is spontaneous throughout. Matinees as usual.
